Hungary And Rumania Maintain Hardships For Jews

Aftonbladet, a social-Democratic paper which is published in Stockholm, commenting on the Jewish persecutions in Hungary says: "They are just as bestial as those taking place in Germany and the other occupied countries. Half the military and veterinary surgeons are Jews. After the 1918 collapse, the Jews got the blame and the White reign of terror under Horthy after that of Bela Kun cost many Jews their lives. Nazism in Germany and the incorporation of Austria caused fresh curtailments of Jewish rights. Many Jews intermarried with the nobility and a strict enforcement of Jewish laws would affect about three million Hungarian citizens. They are now facing the same fate as those in Poland. There is a difficulty of where to draw the line, but once it is started there is no knowing where it will stop."

Chief Rabbi Dr. Isaac Herzog, of Palestine, sent a memorandum to the Holy See through neutral channels, pleading for intervention on behalf of persecuted Hungarian Jewry.

The Chief Rabbi, in his memorandum, implored the Pope to do his utmost to save these Jews. He emphasized that the influence of the Church in a Catholic country like Hungary could certainly outweigh any other influence.

Many Jews, in their efforts to avoid internment, took refuge with Christian friends, or hid in the forests. One Jewish woman, who had concealed herself in an attic, refused to come out when discovered by the police, who opened fire on her.

The Minister of the Interior ... as the Wercsmo Palace, in which a museum will be set up, and the collections of the Jewish industrialists Hatvany and Deutsch.

All public entertainments have been banned to Jews.

A brutal comment on the persecution of Hungarian Jews was made by the German radio, which said that the removal of the last Jewish citadel in Europe has finally shattered Jewry's plan to regain power in Europe from Hungary.

Anti-Jewish decrees affected all sections of the population. Where concessions have been found necessary to avoid upsetting the economic fabric of the country, a strict time-limit has been set.

Germans Report 12,000 Jews From Hungary Daily

An appeal in behalf of Hungarian Jews now facing persecution and deportation was made by the Rev. Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Dr. Cavert acted on information ... said that transit conditions for the deportees were such that many died on the way and that others were killed and cremated after arrival.

Report On Killings Confirms German Death Camps

Information reaching two European relief committees with headquarters in Switzerland has confirmed reports of the existence in Auschwitz and Birkenau in Upper Silesia of two "extermination camps" where more than 1,715,000 Jewish refugees were put to death between April 15, 1942, and April 15, 1944.

The two committees referred to are the International Church Movement Ecumenical Refugee Commission with headquarters in Geneva, and the Fluchtlingshilfe of Zurich, whose head, the Rev. Paul Voght, has disclosed a long report on the killings.

This report says national "clean-ups" are periodically ordered by the Nazis in various occupied countries and when they are enforced Jews are shipped to the execution camps. Totals compiled two months ago show the following number of Jews "eradicated" in the two camps excluding hundreds of thousands slain elsewhere.

Poland	900,000
Netherlands	100,000
Greece	45,000
France	150,000
Belgium	50,000
Germany	80,000
Yugoslavia, Italy and Norway	90,000
Bohemia, Moravia and Austria	70,000
Slovakia	60,000
Foreign Jews from various camps in Poland	200,000

To this total must now be added Hungary's Jews. About 20 per cent of the 400,000 there have been slain or have died en route to

Germans Pursue While French Defend Jews

More than twenty Jewish children who had been living with peasants in Thones, France, were arrested by Nazi police and taken away in Wehrmacht cars to an "unknown destination," according to the Swiss newspaper Journal ...

Upper Silesia. Discussing "malicious, fiendish, inhuman brutality" in the treatment of Hungarian Jews, the Ecumenical Commission says:

"According to authenticated information now at hand some 400,000 Hungarian Jews have been deported from their homeland since April 6 of this year under inhuman conditions to Upper Silesia. Those that did not die en route were delivered to the camps of Auschwitz and Birkenau in Upper Silesia, where during the past two years it has now been learned many hundreds of thousands of their co-religionists have been fiendishly done to death."

After a fortnight to three months' imprisonment, during which they were "selected" or worked to death, the Jews were led to the execution halls, it was said. These halls consist of fake bathing establishments handling 2,000 to 3,000 daily.

Prisoners were led into cells and ordered to strip for bathing. Then cyanide gas was said to have been

PALESTINIAN SOLDIERS HELP SHATTERED GROUPS OF REFUGEES IN ITALY

Words cannot describe the tremendous welfare effort which Palestinian Jewish units serving in Italy have carried out and are at present carrying out for refugees, stated Moshe Shertok, head of the Political Department of the Jewish Agency, in Jerusalem. They were able to initiate four agricultural pioneering training camps and several vocational instruction centres, to sponsor a cultural group, to help to establish artisans' co-operatives within the refugee camps, and generally to promote the restoration of normal community life among the shattered groups of refugees who had been subsisting from hand to mouth in Italy before the capitulation.

Mr. Shertok recalled that another A. T. S. group formed of Palestinian Jewesses, had arrived in Southern Italy, where they were billeted in Naples. He added that it was impossible to overemphasize the mutual benefits emerging from the contacts between the Palestinian Jewish units and the Jewish soldiers in the American and the other Armies fighting in Italy. But although Jews fighting in other Armies had not a separate identity, the Palestinian Jewish units were integrated into the Yishav contingent which was proudly asserting its Jewishness.

He described to the London Jewish Chronicle correspondent how Palestinian Jewish soldiers, despite their arduous military duties, used their leisure periods to tramp the countryside in Southern Italy seeking out the scattered Jewish refugees. They even scaled snow-clad mountainsides to reach remote villages, where in many cases they found individual Jews sheltering in peasants' huts in conditions of utmost destitution. Some of their pitiful refugees were women and children who had lost their menfolk, others were orphans bereft of both parents, whom the soldiers brought to their camps and helped to tend.

Popolo E Liberta, a Swiss newspaper, recently described the massacre of the Jews in Meina on Lake Maggiore shortly after the rise of the new Fascism on September 8, 1943.

A special detachment of trained Jew-hunters arrived in Savona. One section was stationed at Pallanza, and another at Stresa. Two days later two bodies were found in Tenta, buried so carelessly that the feet were uncovered. They turned out to be the bodies of elderly but well-dressed men who had been killed with tommy-guns. The wounds on their faces made them unrecognizable.

Soldiers then drove up in a lorry, soaked the corpses in oil, and set fire to them, so that the Prefect of Arona was unable to identify them.

The night the Grand Hotel at Meina, where [illegible] Jews of [illegible] who had [illegible] into a lorry, were [illegible] lonely spot beside the lake, and killed with tommy-guns. The bodies were thrown into the lake with stones attached to the necks. The children were then killed in the same way.

After some time the ropes attached to the stones rotted and the bodies were washed ashore, the first body to appear being that of a man around whose face were knotted the sleeves of his jacket.

The people wanted to bury him, but soldiers intervened, crying "infected flesh." They burned the body with flame throwers.

KANSAS CITY JEWS PROVIDE HALF OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH DEBT

... long dispute in the general superintendence of good will. Following a disastrous fire in which their Linwood boulevard edifice was completely destroyed, the Community Church, of which Burris Jenkins is the minister, spent $290,000 to build a modernistic church on Country Club Plaza. While this building was under construction, the congregation worshiped in Rabbi Mayerberg's synagogue. The Jewish business men of the city undertook to raise $20,000 if the Community Church people would match their gift. The Community Church secured its half.

U. S. Under Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius announced at a Jewish Unity Dinner honoring Representative Sol. Bloom that the British Government had just agreed to establishment of a new war refugee haven in one of the former colonies in Libya.

Recalling the announcement several weeks ago by President Roosevelt that a camp to accommodate 1,000 refugees was being set up at Fort Ontario, Oswego, N.Y., Mr. Stettinius voiced the hope that other countries would follow the lead of the British and American governments and take similar steps.

Among the host of Mr. Bloom's friends gathered in his honor at the Commodore Hotel were diplomatic and consular representatives of a score of foreign nations.

Dewey Views Disturb Arabs

Some nervousness has been occasioned in Arab circles by the nomination of Governor Dewey as the Republican candidate for U.S. President, and by a report printed in the press at Cairo, Egypt, that his party intended to include in its platform a plank or declaration urging the British to implement the Balfour Declaration on Palestine.

Arab circles recall that Governor Dewey made a pro-Zionist statement some weeks ago. Although the Egyptian press took no embrace at this at the time, the Arab Federation Society, an organization headed by Fuad Abaza Pasha, which champions Pan-Arab plans, protested and asked Governor Dewey that his view on Jewish emigration to Palestine was incompatible with the Atlantic Charter.

The report of the Republican party's views on the Balfour declaration—and with the limited press facilities at Cairo and no official information in hand from the American legation or the OWI, it is impossible to ascertain how accurately they were represented—has caused some concern among Arabs.

Some feel that this is tantamount to waving a red flag, and that the candidate has been considered to supporting an issue which for a quarter of a century has defied British statesmanship and created rancor in an area far removed from American influence.

Jews Blamed For War In Pamphlet Read At Trial

Henry P. Klein of New York, counsel for Eugene N. Sanctuary, one of the twenty-nine defendants in the mass sedition trial at Washington, D. C., was fined $200 by Justice Edward C. Eicher on the ground that he was "obstructing justice by dilatory cross-examination."

It was the second fine for Mr. Klein for contempt of court and the sixth imposed on defense counsel or their clients since the trial began eleven weeks ago.

The jury heard testimony by Roy P. Arnold, a Los Angeles optical technician, that the German-American Bund in Los Angeles, in late 1938 and early 1939, distributed pulpy publications accredited to several of the defendants assailing Jews as chiefly responsible for the possibility that the United States might become involved in a war with Germany and Japan.

Mr. Arnold said that he joined the Bund to get information on its activities which, he felt, as a native American citizen, he should convey to appropriate government authorities.

Jews Too Favored, Says House Member

Frederic Dorion (Ind. Charlevoix-Saguenay) said in Budget debate in the Canadian House of Commons that before immigration was resumed there should be a complete investigation to see whether immigrants could be absorbed. Quebec opposed opening the doors wide to newcomers.

"Is it not ridiculous to permit the entry into Canada of immigrants who will not even be able to pay their own transportation and who will be nothing else than a burden for our people?" he asked.

More than 90 per cent of 982 entry permits issued to refugees [illegible] to stop all the many [illegible].

Mr. Dorion said he was "amazed" at how little concern was displayed by Prime Minister Mackenzie King over resolutions passed by municipalities asking full application of Immigration Act provisions against any person seeking to enter Canada.

"Must we come to the conclusion that the Jewish refugees deserve better attention from our Government than our Canadian-born citizens?" he asked.

New Book Supplements Great History

Isaac Elbogen's "A Century of Jewish Life" shows the reader that the present German situation grew out of seeds buried deep in the thought and ambitions of 19th century Germany. It not only describes the achievements of the Jews in Palestine, but traces the Zionist movement to the cultural rebirth and the political disappointments of the Jews during the century of Liberalism, Nationalism and Antisemitism.

It tells of the rise of Jews to freedom and influence, of the strivings of Judaism to maintain itself and to adjust its ritual and philosophy to changed conditions of life, of the new and even farther-flung diaspora communities, of heroism and martyrdom, of self-hate and desertion characteristic of minority existence. It is a volume which, despite its simple, straightforward narrative style, bears testimony to the fact that the history of no people is so full of climaxes, so poignant with sorrow, so replete with human idealism as is the story of the Jews.

Over its pages hovers the specter of the monstrous crimes being perpetrated against Israel at the present moment; yet the author could end the book with the hopeful cry: "We do not despair . . . We trust in God, and we go on!"

The volume itself already has a history which is worth noting. Professor Heinrich Graetz, the famous German-Jewish historian, completed his famous History of the Jews in 1870. The Jewish Publication Society of America completed the publication of its edition in English, in somewhat abbreviated form, in 1898. The Jewish Publication Society of America, therefore, felt the need [illegible] was a famous scholar, a historian of Judaism, a man with a gift for simple exposition of complex details, one, moreover, whose public spirit and broad interests placed him at the very center of the pulsating Jewish life. In 1938 he came to the United States as a refugee from Hitlerism, and soon thereafter he was asked to write this volume. He dedicated himself to this task with characteristic devotion, and it serves as a summary of his life as well as of his thought. For, unfortunately, he died a few days after completing the epilogue to this work.

A Century of Jewish Life, translated by Professor Moses Hadas is one of the membership books of The Jewish Publication Society of America. Full details on the membership can be secured by writing to the Executive vice-president, Maurice Jacobs, 222 Lewis Tower Building, Philadelphia 2, [illegible]

Eventually all the bodies were washed up, including those of the children, who had clamped each other in death.

This special detachment stayed in Meina for twenty days, and during that time carried out a round-up of the Jews in the Verbano area. A number of Jews were deported, while others were massacred. The bodies of a newly married couple were found in Mergozzo, and those of two women in Pondotorre. Two dead girls were discovered in Ghiffa and one murdered woman in Invorio. Four bodies were found in a common grave in Pallanza. All had been killed by a burst of tommy-gun fire in their faces in order to render them unrecognizable.

"We are prepared to hear all sorts of contradictory reports from America in the next six months, and experience teaches us it would be best to ignore most of them."

"Nevertheless, the Palestine question is extremely touchy and important in the Middle East, and its injection into the election issues has aroused much interest."

The Republican party plank on Palestine adopted at the Chicago convention reads as follows:

"In order to give refuge to millions of distressed Jewish men, women and children driven from their homes by tyranny, we call for the opening of Palestine to their unrestricted immigration and land ownership, so that in accordance with the full intent and purpose of the Balfour Declaration of 1917 and the resolution of a Republican Congress in 1922, Palestine may be constituted as a free and democratic commonwealth. We condemn the failure of the President to insist that the mandatory of Palestine carry out the provision of the Balfour Declaration and of the mandate while he pretends to support them."

SORRY, IF THERE WAS NOT ENOUGH ICE CREAM TO GO AROUND IN JUNE

Perhaps you have had difficulties in obtaining Joubert's Ice Cream in June. We would have liked to offer you more of this wholesome food, for Joubert's Ice Cream is rich in Vitamins, Proteins, Calcium and other important minerals so necessary to good nutrition.

These shortages of Ice Cream are quite general. Why do they occur? For three reasons:

First — We are restricted in the amount of butterfat and sugar we can use for the manufacture of Ice Cream.

Second — There is a much greater demand for Joubert's Ice Cream than ever before. With dealers on strict rations, this increased demand plays havoc and most dealers run out of Ice Cream before the month ends.

Third — To conserve on rubber and gasoline, dealer deliveries are restricted. If a dealer runs out of Ice Cream, he must wait for his next regular delivery day, even though his queue is not yet exhausted.

We, of J. J. Joubert Limitée, want to thank all of you — our customers and our dealers — for the splendid cooperation given us in meeting this shortage situation. We publish these facts concerning the Ice Cream shortage so that all concerned will understand how and why it occurs from time to time.

RESCUE IN EUROPE

"As you know," Mr. Stettinius said, "large numbers of refugees are arriving in southern Italy every day from Yugoslavia. Great efforts have been made to find places of refuge.

"This new haven will do much to ease the suffering of these unfortunate people. We profoundly hope that this act of mercy, like that of our own country a few weeks ago, will lead to similar acts by other nations in opening their doors to peoples who would otherwise perish under Nazi brutality."

Telling of the State Department's constant efforts to help refugees escape from Europe, the Under-Secretary said:

"Much of the story of assistance to the refugees of Europe cannot now be told without seriously endangering our future efforts. [illegible] will be one of the most dramatic chapters in the history of human freedom."

Mr. Stettinius said America's work in behalf of European refugees "is being carried on under the active sponsorship of two of the great men of our age—Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Cordell Hull."

"They are men of large hearts and large minds," he continued, "and I can assure you that their hearts and their minds are deeply concerned in this work of rescuing human lives from Axis cruelty."

Mr. Stettinius paid tribute to the work of Representative Bloom, who, as chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, provided the "utmost assistance" in helping establish the War Refugee Board and in carrying its work forward with "energy and skill."

"Sol. Bloom," Mr. Stettinius said, "has always been a valiant fighter for freedom, a bitter foe of intolerance and persecution. He saw clearly from the start that Nazism was a menace to the freedom of the whole people; he understood immediately that this new barbarism was an assault on civilization itself.

"I speak for the entire State Department—and I am sure for the entire country—when I say that we owe a great debt to Sol Bloom and, indeed, to all the distinguished members of the Foreign Affairs Committee for their whole-hearted cooperation during these difficult recent years."

Mr. Bloom, who is serving his eleventh term in Congress as one of the Democratic Representatives from New York, learned at the dinner that a grove in the George Washington Forest in Palestine, had been named the Sol. Bloom Grove in honor of his achievements."

The Liberty ship Meyer London, named after the late Jewish labor leader of New York, went down on its maiden voyage.

HUNGARY, RUMANIA

Dr. Eliahu Weinstein, former publisher of the Czernowitzer Morgenblatt, who only recently arrived in Tel-Aviv from Rumania stated that only a few Bessarabian Jews, who numbered between 250,000 and 300,000 before the war, now remained. He himself had been deported to Transnistria in August, 1941. At that time the whole area was cleared of Jews. Thousands of Jews were killed on October 11, 1942, when the Czernowitz ghetto was established.

Another refugee, Mrs. Jacubowicz, of the Carpatho-Russian Chalutz movement, revealed that of the 150,000 Jews living in that region before the war only 60,000 remained. The others have been killed. Escaping with her family of seven, she arrived at Stanislawow on the day that 30,000 Jews were rounded up and led to the Jewish cemetery where 15,000 were mown down by machine-gun fire. The shootings lasted from 10 a. m. till 3 p. m. Her whole family was among the victims.

A third refugee, Mrs. Hannah Shechter, declared that only two per cent remained of the 60,000 Jews drafted into labour battalions. She witnessed the mass murder of Jews in Tlumacz when 300 men, women, and children were slaughtered.

Only persons belonging to a professional organization will henceforth be permitted to work in Rumania, reports the German radio. Jews, however, are not allowed to belong to such organizations, according to a bill which has been prepared by the Rumanian Ministry of Labour.

Foreigners may work in accordance with existing international agreements, but Jews are also excluded here.

"Professions" have been divided into five categories: farming, industry, commerce, trade and intellectual.

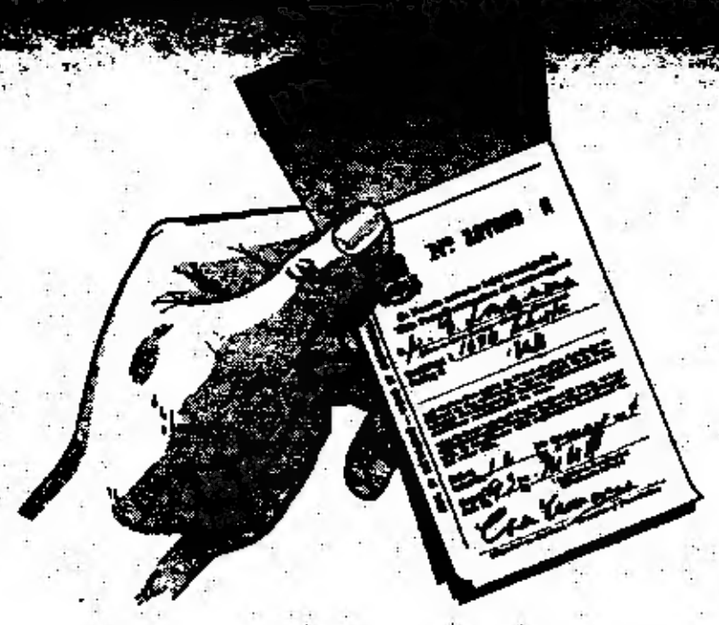
Each Purchaser is Responsible for his Own Liquor Permit



Today, through the use of the new liquor ration permit books, a much closer check of purchases in the stores of the Quebec Liquor Commission is being made for the general benefit of the public. The obligation to show the National Registration Card and to sign the permit book has made for tighter control and has allowed a much fairer distribution of available stocks.

At the same time, the Quebec Liquor Commission is continuing to rely upon the co-operation of the public, for any system of control can be difficult and often inadequate if lacking the full co-operation of the individual.

Under the circumstances, therefore, the Quebec Liquor Commission earnestly requests all purchasers to abide by two major conditions:—

1. The liquor ration permit book is personal. It is issued for the exclusive and personal use of the party in whose name it was granted.
2. Its rights are not transferable. The permit holder is not allowed to send any other person in his place to purchase alcoholic beverages.

Any permit holder who delegates a second party to effect a purchase with his permit runs the risk of having his permit confiscated by the clerk of the store.

The single exception to this rule is the following:—"A husband may make a purchase on behalf of his wife with her permit book, and vice-versa." However, the two permits held by both cannot be used at one and the same time.

This new regulation is designed to allow those whose occupations prevent them from being at the stores during business hours, a means of obtaining rationed supplies.

It is hoped that every citizen will bear these matters in mind, and will make no attempt to obtain a greater share than is rightfully his . . . and that all consumers will appreciate sufficiently the fact that these present restrictions are exceedingly light, compared to those which exist outside of the province.

Anti-Semitism

"IT IS TIME TO EXAMINE OUR CHRISTIAN-DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY"

BY WATSON THOMSON, SUPERINTENDENT OF ADULT EDUCATION, UNIVERSITY OF MANITOBA, IN THE UNITED CHURCH OBSERVER

When a Jewish synagogue can be burned down, in a nominally Christian and democratic country—as happened just the other day—with no more in the way of public protest than there was, it is time to do more than write articles about anti-Semitism. It is time, among other things, to examine the foundations of our Christian-democratic society to see whether the rots have been getting at them, or dry rot set in, or just plain neglect has brought us to this pass. It is time, also, for reaffirming our principles—if we find we genuinely have any. It is time, finally, to act.

Let us try, first, to get one or two things clear in the broad perspective of world trends in our time. Anti-Semitism is not the only trouble of that kind. There is also anti-Jap feeling in British Columbia and California, "white supremacy" in the Southern States and South Africa, and minor versions and degrees of racialism (including the vague suspicion that some inherent superiority accrues to the possessor of an Anglo-Saxon ancestry) all over the Western World. How is it that such things should be intensifying at the very time when we fight what is supposed to be a "people's war" of the "United Nations" for the defence and the victorious extension of democracy?

The simple truth is, of course, that fascism is an almost universal disease, taking an infinite variety of forms—subtle in some conditions, brutally obvious in others. Fascism is the revolt against human progress of all those who hate or fear human progress. It is not to be overcome merely by defeating Hitler's Wehrmacht though it is assuredly not to be overcome without that.

What is happening in our time is that a great new expansive opportunity—the gift of our own scientists and technicians—of abundance for all education for all, shared [illegible] all in every field, is still inhibited by the [illegible] they know that if these fixed ideas were opened their beloved prejudices as well as their cherished prerogatives would be swept away in a great tide of creative energy from the "common man."

So it is that everywhere there are these last dying kicks of reaction. This may be the last time in human history when this sort of reaction can get anywhere at all. For just as "the divine right of kings" vanished some time ago, so the divine right of Aryans, or bishops, or Big Shots of any kind, may disappear as "the People" find themselves, across the meaningless boundaries of nationality, in handclasps that make a chain of amity and solidarity around the world. The cliques of privilege everywhere know that the great threat confronts them. They lose no opportunity to establish, while they yet may, their misbegotten principles of Inequality, Scarcity and Superstition.

There are such general reasons for increased anti-Semitism these days. There are also reasons particular to the Jewish people and their historic significance which we shall notice later. The general reason, as we have seen, has to do with the need to establish inequality as a social principle by playing up the superiority of the "ingroup" against the inferiority of some minority-group. It succeeds as much as it does—and for Canada today it is a humiliatingly great deal—because of the individual inferiority-feeling which finds compensation in such demonstrations of group egotism, and because of ignorance.

As a people, we simply do not know enough to be adequately protected against these fascist tricks. We are not quite sure whether maybe there isn't some truth in these stories about Jews being unscrupulous in their business dealings. And, after all, have they not some collective guilt for their rejection of Jesus, the Christ?

We don't seem to know enough to be really clear, confident and utterly uncompromising in our answers to these subversive whisperings and scandal-mongerings. We don't seem to know that if some Jews, or even many Jews have manners and morals we dislike, there are historic reasons for it in which Christendom is very much involved. We don't seem to know that, in any case, the point is whether a man is inevitably such-and-such because of his "race"; and that the answer to that is a categorical no.

We get tripped up over and over again, in this whole question of "race," because we still trust "the evidence of our senses," we still believe things are as they seem. We ought to know that what our eye tells us, whether about the real character of a Negro or the true nature of the substance of this wooden table I write on, is either untrue or unimportant. What we see with our eyes are surfaces, illusions. What matters is below the surface, in the sphere of mind, of meanings and values. If this Negro has a rational mind in any shape or colour of body.

There is only one kind of human reason everywhere in the world. (There are many varieties of unreason and mythology—German, English Negro, Jap and so on. There is German mythology, but there is no such thing as German thought. There is only human thought.) That is why the hope of human unity is well-founded and the faith in universal brotherhood a solid faith, backed by science as well as religion.

Finally, there are the particular reasons why, in this time when group-prejudice of every kind is being stirred up for the purposes of reaction, the anti-Jewish prejudice should be particularly violent. Basically, it is because the Jewish people more than any other group have stood, ever since Moses, against idolatry, against superstition, against the arrogance of tyrants and priests, for equality, reckless and excited justice.

To Hitler and to any other fascist Fuhrer who knows that the people can only be enslaved at this late date if they can be swept off their feet into some fanaticism, some irrational devotion and irrational hatred—to all such enemies of humanity the sceptical, equalitarian temper of the Jewish people must needs be anathema.

And that is why Protestants, who also give a high place in the Universe to human reason, should stand solidly with the Jewish people and their values against the enemies of reason, progress and the dignity of the human person.

You And Judaism

A CHAT WITH JEWISH MEN AND WOMEN IN THE ARMED FORCES

BY HON. CHPT. RABBI OSCAR Z. FASMAN, OF OTTAWA, MEMBER OF THE RELIGIOUS COMMITTEE OF THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS

Let us begin at the beginning.

You know better than anyone else in the world how much, or how little, religion means to you. You may be one of those who visits a Synagogue only on the High Holidays, or you may be one who has been putting on his "Tefillin" every morning since Bar Mitzvah; you may be a fellow who never ate trefah meat until you entered the army, or you might be one of those unusual people who have still succeeded in avoiding eating forbidden meat. On the other hand, you may be one who has never cared one bit about Kosher food. You see then that I do not know much about you.

But you are a Jew, and you probably have somewhere within you an attitude towards your religion that is not altogether negative. After all, in one form or another religion is a natural experience of the human heart. All of us feel that there is a Power outside of ourselves that supports the whole universe, and we acknowledge His rule through word of mouth, or bended knee, or profounder still, an inner emotional response. In every part of the world, among the most highly civilised and among the most backward peoples, this recognition of a Supreme Spirit — we say G-d — has been discovered. Is it not clear that the tremendous, fascinating mystery of life must be looked upon as His great masterpiece?

Your people and mine, the Jewish people, was the first to develop a way of life in which that idea would be kept unfailingly before man. Since ideas must be represented in tangible deeds if we do not want them to evaporate, the Torah, the world's most magnificent [illegible] which teaches us how to act as G-d's children. You were no doubt brought into contact with them as a child. I have no way of knowing whether your teachers hurled the lessons at you, or whether they led you to an understanding of the beauty and creative value in them. By this time, however, you must have come upon occasions of overwhelming joy and heavy sorrow, when you were conscious of the help religion gives the human soul. You have known the satisfaction of adhering to the religious practices of Israel, whether in large or small measure. Do not lose that satisfaction!

The question you should ask yourself, now that you are on active service, is this: "How much of the Jewishness I once had can be kept even while in uniform?"

It is quite easy, of course, to say to yourself that there is nothing you can really observe any more. After that, you might strike one of two poses. You might say that because you are in uniform it is perfectly permissible for you to throw away every bit of Jewishness in your conduct. Or you might tell yourself that you have violated so much of the religious Code you once believed in that you are hopelessly lost.

My purpose in addressing this little message to you is to suggest that if you take either of these alternatives, you are doing yourself a wrong. The Jewish religion has a basic rule that will explain exactly what I mean.

> The rule is: Anybody who in the service of his Country must violate certain laws of Judaism is excused, providing that he does the best he can.

You will admit that this is a very sensible and logical rule. Let us see how it works out in practice.

Suppose your Commanding Officer assigns you to a special task that must be carried out, and in performing it you will not be able to go to the Synagogue on Yom Kippur. You first attempt through the proper channels to bring your plight to his attention with a request that you be excused because of the Holy Day. Your officer decides that he cannot dispense with your services for this particular duty. Your conscience should then feel perfectly clear when you are performing it.

If, again, the work in which you are engaged is of so heavy a nature that you cannot do it without some food, then fast part of the day, and eat when you have to — with a clear conscience. Should you at this point decide that you have violated Yom Kippur anyhow and therefore you are going to smoke a cigarette as well, that is where you are breaking with the rule stated above.

In other words, you are acting in accordance with Jewish Law as long as your violation is of such a nature that it cannot be avoided, for then indeed it is no violation; the moment that you violate such matters as need not be violated, then it is a violation.

The same principle holds true in the field of eating Kosher food (and the value of Kashrut in the life of our people can hardly be overemphasized). If you are so situated that you can obtain Kosher meals, even though it would involve personal inconveniences and the sacrifice of time and money, you must still do everything in [illegible] that has happened to spoil, that you have no chance to obtain Kosher food, you must strive to do the best you can with the diet available; for example, where you can choose between fish and beef, you should choose the former.

At any rate, when you are back home, you must not tell yourself that you can eat trefah meat wherever you go now, because you are eating it in the army, anyhow. In other words, you might eat 101 trefah meals in the army mess without doing violence to your conscience, and yet you would be disrespectful towards your Judaism if you ate even one trefah sandwich in a city where you have the chance to obtain a Kosher meal.

Let us give another illustration. Suppose you were one of those who always did wear your "Tefillin". Let me say at the outset there are men in the Forces who live in barracks and still put on their "Tefillin" every morning, so that it is clearly not an utter impossibility. It is nevertheless conceivable that the type of duties to which you have been assigned makes it virtually impossible for you to put on your "Tefillin" in the morning. That does not mean that you are excused from putting on your "Tefillin" on the Sunday morning when you are free of these duties. If you fail to put on your "Tefillin" at that occasion, when the opportunity is available to you, you have that morning not acted squarely with your own conscience.

There is no point in my burdening you with further illustrations. How you will act on Pesach, what you will do with a Yahrzeit, how much of the Shabbos you can respect — all of these problems depend upon your determination to do as much, rather than as little, as you can. When you stop to consider, the spirit of a person proves its worth in solving a tough problem, not in mastering a simple one.

Throughout history Jews have earned boundless respect by clinging tenaciously to their Torah in circumstances that were far from encouraging. It has been said, too, that England was never so much a religious nation as in that grim period of stubborn exaltation when the fall of France threatened to crush her. How about your own spirit?

> The true measure of your faith, of how much it means to you, is not how you act in normal circumstances, when there are no obstacles to overcome, and when your habits run along undisturbed by any outward challenge, but how great and earnest are the [illegible]

And it is unquestionably true that you have probably never yet encountered so serious a hurdle to leap over as that which the army put up in your track by its routine and requirements. Here, therefore, you must prove your mettle. Here, if Yom Kippur ever meant anything to you, you may have to show that it really does. Or if Kashrut ever seemed of importance to you, this is the place to establish that. Or "Tefillin". Mind you, not to show that you are going to live up to it as you always did or nothing at all, but that if the situation sometimes thwarts you in the total observance, you will still go through with a maximum of the possibilities available.

There are altogether too many who put on the uniform and simultaneously throw away all of their Jewish garments. If we knew that things could not be otherwise, there would be no room for discussion. In view of the fact, however, that there are people in uniform who have made the sacrifice to keep to the traditions sacred to them wherever possible, whenever possible, and as much as possible, we are justified in [illegible] power of their faith.

Go back then and study your own conduct as a Jew. Analyse it all over again, ask yourself honestly whether you have not made military life an excuse for all kinds of violations that, with a bit of effort, could have been avoided. Think over carefully the basic rule.

> Do not condemn yourself for such violations in Jewish Law as had to come because of the life in which you now find yourself. Your conscience can consider itself clean and whole-some on that score. Do not hesitate, on the other hand, to blame yourself for all those acts of negligence and indifference, violation and transgression, that you tried to cover up by the lame excuse that you are in uniform.

The army in which you serve expects the best of you. Your religion deserves no less. Are you sure you are giving it all you can?

Nationalist Propaganda Makes Violence And Vandalism

The New Republic says: Other minorities than Negroes are also victims of the anti-racial upsurge we are now witnessing. In a recent statement on the work of the FEPC, the New York Regional Director stated: " . . . the tendency to deny persons employment at their highest skills because of their religion is mounting rather than disappearing in the face of acknowledged need for production."

Anti-Semitic violence and vandalism, somewhat eased since the widespread outbreaks last year, have come to the surface again. It has been fairly well established by competent investigators that while these outbreaks cannot be attributed to any conspiracy or organized plan, they are the result of indoctrination with anti-Semitic propaganda sponsored by nationalist organizations and press with the avowed intention of arousing racial and religious hatred.

The recent flooding of the Boston area with new and vicious anti-Semitic leaflets, the fresh outbreaks such as the beating up of two young Harvard students by a gang of youthful "Gestapos" who first enquired if they were Jews, and the statement of a teacher in a New York public school to her sixth-grade pupils that "It's too bad Hitler is on the other side and can't take care of the Jews here too," are proof enough that there must be no let-up in the fight in this sector of the race-relations front.

JEWS BLAMED

The witness, who said he had had experience as an investigator, became interested in finding about Bund activities because, he said, a defendant and fellow-optical plant worker, had talked to him considerably about them.

He added that he obtained much of the Bund-sponsored literature at its "Aryan Bookstore" and identified several of these documents which he said he turned over to a man identified to him as having contact with Federal investigative agencies.

In response to questioning from O. John Rogge, chief prosecutor, Mr. Arnold said he recalled that some of this material bore the names, as authors or publishers, of Edmonson, Pelley, Sanctuary and the "Defender," published in Kansas.

Among the defendants are Robert E. Edmonson, William Dudley Pelley, Eugene N. Sanctuary and Gerald B. Winrod, publisher of a Wichita (Kan.) organ called the "Defender."

Mr. Rogge read to the jury an extract from an anti-Jewish pamphlet, which the witness had testified as coming from the Bund bookstore, and which the prosecutor said was published by defendant Edmonson. It said:

"Morning, noon and night, the Jew-controlled press, radio and movie newsreels are flooding this country with propaganda deliberately aimed at involving us in war."

"International Jew Baruch, Fellow Traveler Ickes, Dorothy Thompson Levy, Kosher La Guardia and the whole 'Jew Deal' crowd are baiting friendly nations!

"The American people have no quarrel with Germany or Japan. They do not want to fight either nation. And neither the Germans nor the Japanese want to fight us.

"The only people who want war are the Jews!"

Defense counsel spent much of the day testing the recollection of the witness as when and how he obtained these documents, what he did with them and how he could swear they were the same in content as those originally sought to bring to Government attention. It was Mr. Klein's questioning at this point that brought the $200 fine.

GERMANS DEPORT

Pointing out that indifference to such cruelty toward the Jews as is reported from Hungary "would leave a black stain on the record of any country which wants to be regarded as Christian," Dr. Cavert, in behalf of the Federal Council, urged leaders of the Christian churches in Hungary to "refuse to be silent in the presence of this crime and to do everything possible to aid and comfort the Jewish victims."

He also appealed to American Christians to pray for the Hungarian Jews subjected to "such inhuman treatment."

and every one of us for the promulgation of the anti-Jewish decrees." The Brussels Deutsche Zeitung and Die Pariser Zeitung, both German-language dailies, offer rewards for denouncing Jews to the authorities.
